SDSU Office of AANHPISI Affairs & APIDA Center Executive Director's Message

November 14, 2025

From Dr. Loh-Hagan: Let's go to the movies!

This week has been all about the San Diego Asian Film Festival (SDAFF)! For 26 years, this festival has brought us amazing films about Asian and APIDA experiences. On Saturday, November 8th, Agnes Wong Nickerson (SDSU's Chief Financial Officer) and I attended the SDAFF gala and had the pleasure of running into other SDSU folks: Dr. Brian Hu (Professor and the Artistic Director for SDAFF), Terry Matsuoka (alum), Alex Villafuerte (alum), Alex Kim (CDO at KPBS), Deanna Magpali (alum), and others!

In addition, we took students to go see "Characters Disappearing" and had a special meet and greet with the director and actor, Connor Sen Warnick. Our students asked amazing questions and had some provocative insights. They also learned firsthand about the realities of pursuing a career in the arts.

You still have one more day left of the festival, which ran from November 6-15th! Go see a movie!

Donor Spotlight: Davette Kawachi

APIDA Center thanks Davette Kawachi!

Davette Kawachi was the Director of Resource Management for Fowler College of Business. To us, she has been one of our most popular vendors at our Makers Market. Her creativity shines through in all her wonderfully cute crocheted products. In addition, we also appreciate her generosity as she always gives us a little extra. Kawachi said, "The APIDA Makers Market is a wonderful annual event that promotes creativity and entrepreneurship. Kawachi Crafts has been a proud vendor since the beginning. I am always happy to support the work of the APIDA Center through our participation and our donation. As a retired emeritus administrator at SDSU, I love the opportunity to come back to campus and interact with students, faculty, and staff. The work that Dr. Loh-Hagan does brings accessible programming, resources, and services to the SDSU community and I am happy to donate to support her endeavors. I look forward to the weekly newsletters to learn all about the wonderful things that the APIDA Center is doing!"

Follow Kawachi Crafts and support a fellow SDSU's small business! Feel free to donate to the APIDA Center's Program Fund to help us continue to support events like our Makers Market! Every little bit matters to us!

Know APIDA History!

APIDA Center learns about Japanese American SoCal car culture!

On November 7th in partnership with Residential Education Office (many thanks to Dr. Kara Bauer, Ray Savage, Citkiali Ibarra-Hernandez, and Alexa Gonzalez), we took a field trip to Los Angeles. We went to the Cruising J-Town: Behind the Wheel of the Nikkei Community exhibit, hosted by the ArtCenter College of Design and The Japanese American National Museum (JANM). Lucky for us - We got a special tour from Dr. Oliver Wang, who curated the exhibit and gifted us with a copy of his book.

Japanese Americans in Los Angeles have a deep and complex car culture, using automobiles as a tool for social and economic mobility, a means of community building, and a form of personal expression. From early farming and fish truck drivers to hot-rodding, drifting, and the import car scene, their involvement spans over 100 years and has influenced various aspects of Southern California's car culture.

Japanese American farmers were early users of trucks to transport their produce to markets, with postwar communities developing a strong tradition of running businesses like fish and produce delivery trucks. Car clubs like the Japanese Auto Club of Southern California (JACSC) were formed to bring people together, and local gas stations and mechanics served as community centers. The automobile became a vehicle for personal expression, from pre-war hot rods to mid-century customization, and continues today in scenes like modern drift racing and the import tuner community. Incarceration during World War II (1939-1945) saw many families driven to concentration camps, with their impounded cars serving as a stark symbol of lost freedom. Post-war, the community fully embraced Southern California's car culture.

The 1990s and early 2000s saw a boom in the "JDM" (Japanese Domestic Market) and import tuning scene in Southern California, which was heavily driven by Japanese Americans. This burgeoning import scene served as the direct inspiration for the first Fast & Furious franchise. This fascination with cars continues today.

In addition, we visited the USC Pacific Asia Museum, Little Saigon's Japanese Village Plaza, and Chinatown.

APIDA Center Highlights: News to Know!

APIDA Center braids Kumihimo!

On November 10th, we repeated one of our popular programs, Kumihimo - a Japanese braiding technique that has been practiced for over 1400 years to create decorative and functional cords.

APIDA Center learns about baseball in incarceration camps!

On November 12th, we hosted two programs to learn about the significant role baseball played in building community and identity in the Japanese American incarceration camps during World War II. First, Quinton Sagisi, APIDA Student Intern, hosted a presentation about baseball's history, its spread in Japan, its influence in Japanese American early immigrant communities, and its importance in the camps. In addition, he shared notable Japanese and Japanese American MLB players. Then, we hosted a watch party and showed, "American Pastime," which is about the Nomura family who turned to baseball while incarcerated at Topaz.

APIDA Center co-hosts Musubi Mixer!

On November 12th, we collaborated with the Pacific Islander Student Association (PISA) to host a Musubi Mixer. We learned about the history of SPAM, its spread to the Pacific Islands, and Musubi. SPAM Musubi is a result of impacts by U.S. soldiers in the islands and Japanese immigrants as well as local cultural exchanges. Of course, we closed the event by eating SPAM musubi!

APIDA Center learns about the Philippine Jeepney!

Jeepneys are popular public utility vehicles in the Philippines. They are repurposed U.S. military jeeps that were left after World War II. They have become cultural icons with vibrant decorations. On November 13th, Marianne Lababit, APIDA Student Intern, hosted a workshop about this beloved vehicle. She shared the history and then led a craft activity where participants designed their own jeepney!

APIDA Center plays Ô Ăn Quan!

On November 13th, we teamed up with the Vietnamese Student Association (VSA) to learn about and to play Ô Ăn Quan, a traditional Vietnamese game stemming from the mancala family of games.
